Greg:

I did not respond to your email because I was out for the Yom Kippur holiday (which started Wednesday evening and ended Thursday evening) and, when I saw your email yesterday, I did not believe I needed to respond because you planned on serving the responsive documents the same day (Friday).

It is now Saturday and we still have not received any documents. I am not sure why there has been such a delay. When we discussed the schedule for the deficiency letter and response, you believed 10 days was more than enough time to produce responsive documents (as it should because the documents were due over a month ago - meaning your client has had more than two months to compile the responsive documents).

Our client has instructed us to proceed with a motion to compel if we do not have the documents in hand this weekend. I hope that can be avoided and we receive all the responsive documents this weekend.

Stephen and Heather,

Can I have through Friday to complete the revised discovery responses?
